

Esau's lament

by Marjorie Maddox in the January 25, 2011 issue

Without your words, my breath cracks, dust on sand; without your words,
my limbs break, bones on graves.
Oh, my father, me too. without Can even this be stolen? your words
No syllables of blessing left?
No mouthed morsel of hope? Oh, my father,
I alone am the hunted, your words, trapped and slain, me, too the spoils stolen again, me, too, that fair enemy,
without, without
