Wednesday digest

February 22, 2012

Subscribe by RSS feed: magazine, blogs, news. See all feeds.

New today from the Century:

- Christine Pohl on the practices that sustain congregations: "To build stronger communities, we need to get in the habit of recognizing what undergirds our relationships. We can't afford to take it for granted." (subscription required)
- Debra Bendis on a caregiver who is laying down his life for his elderly mother
- Steve Vineberg briefly reviews the film Man on a Ledge
- Another Ash Wednesday, another jelly-bean binge

In the news:

- After C.S. Lewis College flops, a free campus for the taking
- President Obama's 'theology,' in his own words
- Southern Baptists to stick (mostly) with same name