Thursday digest

March 8, 2012

Subscribe by RSS feed: magazine, blogs, news. See all feeds.

New today from the Century:

- Philip Jenkins on contested holy ground: "You are here to kneel' wrote Eliot, 'where prayer has been valid.' But whose prayers are valid at the Mezquita Catedral, or at Hagia Sophia?" (subscription required)
- Julie Clawson on International Women's Day
- A brief review of the documentary Undefeated
- Colbert for the civil-libertarian win

In the news:

- Scotland Yard says witchcraft abuse a hidden crime
- Pope Benedict XVI, Archbishop of Canterbury to meet
- Vatican website hacked for church's 'crimes'
- COGIC reinstates bishop after criminal charges dropped