New today from the Century:

- The editors on the Catholic bishops and religious liberty: "First the bishops sought an expanded exemption. Now they claim the contraception mandate itself violates religious liberty. It doesn't."
- Carol Howard Merritt on ministry in the midst of wounds: "As important as it is to minister from those wounded places, there is also danger in it—for us and for our communities."
- Nadia Bolz-Weber blogs the lectionary: "Parables aren't too helpful, are they? Here's what would be helpful: six steps to better discipleship. Or the three secrets of the kingdom of God, spelled out in an acrostic."
- Steve Vineberg reviews The Avengers (subscription required)
