

Tuesday digest

July 17, 2012

Subscribe by RSS feed: magazine, blogs, news. See all feeds.

New today from the Century:

- Jayson Casper on Christians and Morsi: "Is Egypt's president fighting for democracy against a military regime? Or is he trying to institute an Islamist takeover?"
- Randall Balmer reviews Jill Gill: "Jill Gill has produced a remarkable account of the declining influence of mainline Protestantism and the NCC in the 1960s and 70s."
- Josh Carney's lectionary column for Sunday, July 29 (subscription required)
- Ross Douthat, liberal Christians and Sweet Valley High
- Lou Carlozo briefly reviews Suzanne Ciani

In the news:

- Seventh-day Adventists file suit over door-to-door solicitations
- Churches shifting summer worship from Sunday to Wednesday nights
- Debate reignites over religion at Air Force Academy
- Gallup reports new low in religious confidence
- "God particle" discovery ignites debate over science and religion