Thursday digest

August 2, 2012

Subscribe by RSS feed: magazine, blogs, news. See all feeds.

New today from the Century:

- Jonathan Wilson-Hartgrove on covenants: "Monastic vows sound familiar to anyone who's been to a wedding. In both marriage and celibacy, we promise to be faithful." (subscription required)
- Roger Olson reviews Jerry Walls: "Can Protestants believe in purgatory?
 Should they? Might this enhance ecumenical relations with Catholics? Jerry Walls's answer to each question is yes." (subscription required)
- Ryan Dueck on "stomaching" the Bible
- Steve Thorngate on Wheaton and the safe-harbor provision