

Tuesday digest

October 23, 2012

Subscribe by RSS feed: magazine, blogs, news. See all feeds.

New today from the Century:

- Philip Jenkins on mainstream churches in Africa: "The vast majority of Africa's christians belong to familiar, mainstream denominations. But scholars pay more attention to the minority." (subscription required)
- David Heim on what it means for government to be closer to the people
- Heidi Neumark's lectionary column for All Saints Day (subscription required)
- Steve Thorngate's running commentary on last night's debate

In the news:

- After controversial video, Vatican hosts serious discussion on Islam