

Thursday digest

February 7, 2013

Subscribe by RSS feed: magazine, blogs, news. See all feeds.

New today from the Century:

- Debra Bendis on aging and the promises of God: "It's hard for me to watch as places become a blur for my elderly parents. It's as if each home they've had has merged into one great longing." (subscription required)
- Jason Byassee on Modern Family: "I don't like family sitcoms, so I long avoided Modern Family. But the show catches the way family can be both loathsome and life-giving." (subscription required)
- David Heim on the word "entitlement"
- Steve Thorngate on why he loves the tumblr WTF, Evolution?

In the news:

- How the Antichrist reflects an era's anxieties
- DuBois leaving White House faith-based post
- Did gun control prevent Jews from stopping the Holocaust?
- Fasting like an Old Testament prophet gains followers during Lent
- Chicago is ground zero in U.S. Muslim renaissance