

Tuesday digest

July 30, 2013

Subscribe by RSS feed: magazine, blogs, news. See all feeds.

New today from the Century:

- Philip Jenkins on Christianity, an Asian religion: "It's ironic that multicultural approaches to Christianity are dismissed as novel or 'politically correct.' They are deeply rooted in our past." (subscription required)
- Carol Howard Merritt on violence as a lack of imagination
- Steve Thorngate on the good question Fox News asked Reza Aslan badly
- Robert Saler's lectionary column for Sunday, August 11 (subscription required)

In the news:

- Is Eric Metaxas the next Chuck Colson?
- Did the Pope change church teaching on homosexuality?
- Walking 1,850 miles to see Pope Francis, pilgrim feels renewed
- Fate of Jerusalem looms over peace talks