constantly risking

by Carl Winderl in the March 25, 2020 issue absurdity and death and insanity, and personal immortality

My Son so performed His miraculous acts with no safety net, neither any thing up His sleeve, nor even a fire curtain any where in sight preferring to walk a tight taut rope, a Crimson Clown as acrobat, not an acrophobe He trod the thin wire of Faith, like walking on water