Matins

by John Petrenka in the October 4, 2011 issue

Awakened by the alarm-radio all seems as other yesterdays and the ebb of tide, your absence, the grains of sand beneath the foam, slowly, revealed. This now of morning asks for a response and I have none.

Read "-O-" and "After."