

of all the Woulds

by Carl Winderl in the January 22, 2014 issue

My Son could have ridden and shed blood upon

mahogany, ebony,
maple, elm, oak,
fir, poplar, banyan, teak,
palm, bamboo, juniper, sequoia, hawthorn, dogwood, magnolia, crab, evergreen, balsa, birch, ficus,

peach, cherry, pear, persimmon, or

apple

the most common one

He'd allow

for

Himself to be spread-eagled on

would be yew.
