The best poem ever

by Brian Doyle in the November 22, 2016 issue

What if, says a small child to me this afternoon, We made a poem without using any words at all? Wouldn't that be cool? You could use long twigs, And feathers, or spider strands, and arrange them So that people imagine what words could be there. Wouldn't that be cool? So there's a different poem For each reader. That would be the best poem ever. The poem wouldn't be on the page, right? It would Be in the air, sort of. It would be between the twigs And the person's eyes, or behind the person's eyes, After the person saw whatever poem he or she saw. Maybe there are a lot of poems that you can't write Down. Couldn't that be? But they're still there even If no one can write them down, right? Poems in Books are only a little bit of all the poems there are. Those are only the poems someone found words for.
