

Link digest

By Steve Thorngate

December 17, 2010

Subscribe to the Century editors' link blogging by feed.

Good news this week on don't ask, don't tell.

A sensible idea for fixing the Senate's rulebook.

Smart column on the problem with pragmatic centrism.

Some alarming definition-creep: the meaning of "terrorist" apparently depends on religion.

Nice James Meeks catch and quip by Whet Moser.

"Marriage" may be more and more a specifically Christian project. A bad thing?

Very interesting study about racism.

Great window on development issues and how one man treated Washington as if it were "just another Nepali settlement with a caste system to untangle."

Libertarian Timothy Lee isn't too excited about the "federalist boomlet" over the ruling against the insurance mandate.

David Cortright on the end of Iraq sanctions.

Along with being champion greenwashers, Chipotle is bad on labor.

Jeffrey Lebowski, patron saint of apatheia?