

Tuesday digest

January 24, 2012

Subscribe by RSS feed: magazine, blogs, news. See all feeds.

New today from the Century:

- Adam Copeland on ministry with young adults with no use for church: "Why are there 45,000 young adults in Fargo-Moorhead with no connection to a church? It's not a supply-side issue; there's simply no demand." (subscription required)
- Rachel Hackenberg asks whether clergy burnout is really a crisis
- Steve Thorngate defends Mitt Romney's decision not to pay more taxes than he owed
- Gretchen Ziegenhals's lectionary column for Sunday, February 5 (subscription required)

In the news:

- Poll: Preachy politicians turn off many voters
- Bodily desecration is disturbing -- but why?
- Anglican network starts campaign for birth registrations
- Muslim men convicted of advocating death for gays