Tuesday digest

February 7, 2012

Subscribe by RSS feed: magazine, blogs, news. See all feeds.

New today from the Century:

- Carol Zaleski on the memory of God: "We can't remember Jesus the way we can remember, say, Bonhoeffer or the lavishly photographed St. Thérèse of Lisieux."
- Martin Copenhaver's seven-words-or-less gospel: "God gets the last word."
- Steve Thorngate on the new PRRI survey on religion and the contraception mandate
- David Lose's lectionary column for Sunday, February 19 (subscription required)

In the news:

- Vatican refutes corruption charges made by ambassador to U.S.
- Cardinal says bishops must 'cooperate' with police on abuse