Wednesday digest

March 28, 2012

Subscribe by RSS feed: magazine, blogs, news. See all feeds.

New today from the Century:

- Marilynne Robinson's lectionary column for Easter Sunday: "The risen Christ does not rebuke Mary for her error. He seems rather to enjoy the occasion of her surprise." (subscription required)
- Robert Harman on United Methodist identity: "Is the United Methodist Church an American denomination with extensions overseas? Or is it a worldwide communion?" (subscription required)
- Walter Brueggemann reviews The Aesthetics of Violence in the Prophets
- Richard Kauffman on doing God's work in committee
- Debra Dean Murphy on the work and journey of Holy Week
- Carol Howard Merritt on this year's Unconference

In the news:

- 'Covenant' to bind Anglicans appears dead
- Report says church giving on the rebound
- Muslims call new religious freedom appointee a 'puppet' for Islam foes
- Pope arrives in Cuba, blasts economic 'selfishness'
- Survey finds deep mistrust for Muslims in Canada