Monday digest

April 9, 2012

Subscribe by RSS feed: magazine, blogs, news. See all feeds.

New today from the Century:

- Marilynne Robinson on John's prologue: "Is John 1 a midrash on the creation story and the song of creative Wisdom? If so, its writer has infused it with profoundest joy." (subscription required)
- LaVonne Neff reviews two light-hearted books about the devil
- Barbara Cawthorne Crafton blogs the lectionary: "I no longer think that Thomas's story is told to demand unquestioning faith. I think it's a story about a savior who came back to the upper room."
- Adam Copeland looks back on a year without a church

In the news:

- Praying for God to hurt someone is not illegal, judge rules
- Anti-Shariah bill defeated in Oklahoma senate