New today from the Century:

- David Steinmetz on the Protestant-Catholic impasse: "The broken communion evident at any eucharistic service is an outward and visible sign of an inward and invisible state of affairs." (subscription required)
- Bromleigh McCleneghan remembers Maurice Sendak: "As a kid, I was scared of monsters. But I never feared Maurice Sendak's monsters. They were loving, if a bit menacing."
- Debra Bendis on Sandra Steingraber's anti-fracking campaign
