

Tuesday digest

July 31, 2012

Subscribe by RSS feed: magazine, blogs, news. See all feeds.

New today from the Century:

- Philip Jenkins on globalization circa 1578: "If one moment symbolizes the unification of the continents, it might be the creation of the diocese of Manila—as a suffragan see of Mexico City." (subscription required)
- James McGrath on Paul, scripture and authority
- Steve Thorngate on the double standard for understanding Aurora and Chicago, or Flint and Gary
- Audrey West's lectionary column for Sunday, August 12 (subscription required)

In the news:

- In gay marriage fight, some companies take a stand
- Muslim group, CAIR, regains tax-exempt status
- Pennsylvania pastor and church charged in mock raid, kidnapping