

Tuesday digest

August 7, 2012

Subscribe by RSS feed: magazine, blogs, news. See all feeds.

New today from the Century:

- Patrick Mason on changes in Mormon social ethics: "The 19th-century Mormon kingdom emphasized the common good. Later came a shift toward personal morality as the mark of saintliness." (subscription required)
- Richard Kauffman on the Chick-fil-A fight that helped no one
- More from Carol Howard Merritt's conversation with Montreat
- Audrey West's lectionary column for Sunday, August 19 (subscription required)

In the news:

- Dolan criticized for inviting Obama to Al Smith Dinner
- Amish report staggering growth in Midwest
- Legacy of Vatican II at heart of dispute between Vatican, U.S. nuns
- For Sikhs, turban is a proud symbol -- and a target
- Faith groups condemn shootings at Wisconsin Sikh temple