

Friday digest

September 7, 2012

Subscribe by RSS feed: magazine, blogs, news. See all feeds.

New today from the Century:

- Rodney Clapp laments the decline of plains communities: "If agriculture survives at all on the Great Plains, it will be very limited. What will take its place? Not many people, that's for sure." (subscription required)
- Kenneth Serbin reviews Kitty Ferguson's biography of Stephen Hawking, "an important book for anyone interested in who and what we are—and where we're going." (subscription required)
- Steve Woolley on the Gospel of Mark's alleged haste
- Carol Howard Merritt talks to Nyasha Junior

In the news:

- Black pastors move to counter new voter ID laws