

Thursday digest

October 4, 2012

Subscribe by RSS feed: magazine, blogs, news. See all feeds.

New today from the Century:

- Thomas G. Long on the healing power of human touch: "Sick people long to be touched—the very thing loved ones tend to avoid. In today's mechanized medicine, doctors keep their distance as well." (subscription required)
- Steve Thorngate's blow-by-blow debate commentary
- David Henson on this Sunday's competing themes
- William H. Willimon reviews Lamin Sanneh (subscription required)
- Philip Jenkins and Grant Wacker's picks for new books in world Christianity and American religion

In the news:

- Conservatives release 2007 video linking Obama to former pastor Jeremiah Wright