

Thursday digest

October 25, 2012

Subscribe by RSS feed: magazine, blogs, news. See all feeds.

New today from the Century:

- John Buchanan on his faulty assumptions: "I entered divinity school assuming that Christians ought to believe something is seriously wrong with the world. But I also loved the world." (subscription required)
- Daniel Schultz on nones he has known
- Steve Thorngate on Paul Ryan's poverty speech
- Valerie Weaver-Zercher reviews Joanna Brooks

In the news:

- Billy Graham faces backlash over Mormon 'cult' removal
- Mormon missionary applications soar by 471 percent
- Family Research Council shooter charged with terrorism
- Neither Obama nor Romney? Some Christians vote for 'None of the Above'
- DNA experiment yields great promise and high ethical risks