

Monday digest

December 3, 2012

Subscribe by RSS feed: magazine, blogs, news. See all feeds.

New today from the Century:

- Jerome Baggett reviews Robert Wuthnow: "According to Wuthnow, well-educated Americans have reconfigured their religious language in terms of reasonableness—and thus retained a place for the supernatural in everyday life." (subscription required)
- Debra Dean Murphy on Life of Pi
- James McGrath on the alleged war on Christmas
- Emory Gillespie blogs the lectionary
- Gillespie's year-end picks in film