New today from the Century:

- Ben Dueholm on Exodus International: "Pulling the beam from one's eye is not an afternoon's task. It takes a whole life of faith—and Alan Chambers's faithful words offer an honest example."
- Rodney Clapp on To the Wonder: "Terrence Malick has become the psalmist of film. His characters continually ask the fundamental questions of theological pursuit." (subscription required)
- Amy Frykholm on old-timers and newcomers in an oil-boom town
- Lou Carlozo briefly reviews Ben Bedford
