Monday digest

July 8, 2013

Subscribe by RSS feed: magazine, blogs, news. See all feeds.

New today from the Century:

- The editors on the Supreme Court and equal rights: "Voter suppression may be a less obvious denial of equality than refusing to issue a marriage license, but it is no less significant."
- Carol Howard Merritt on the day she decided that Methodists might go to heaven
- Ben Dueholm blogs the lectionary
- "If I become like you, I will write about a roughed grouse," a poem by Brian Doyle

In the news:

- Pope Francis decries 'globalization of indifference'
- Highlights from Pope Francis' first encyclical
- Joel Hunter pays a price for political activism