

Monday digest

August 26, 2013

Subscribe by RSS feed: magazine, blogs, news. See all feeds.

New today from the Century:

- René Breuel on conversational witness in Rome: "Believers and nonbelievers alike are often reticent to talk about religion. Yet many people long for such conversations." (subscription required)
- Heath Carter reviews Kate Bowler: "Bowler chronicles how millions of Americans came to see not just wealth but also health as a birthright of the born again." (subscription required)
- Carol Howard Merritt on finding out that a theologian you respect is kind of slimy
- James McGrath on inerrancy and the New Testament

In the news:

- N.C. governor allows anti-Shariah bill to become law
- N.J. gay conversion therapy ban challenged in federal court