Tuesday digest

October 22, 2013

Subscribe by RSS feed: magazine, blogs, news. See all feeds.

New today from the Century:

- Jonathan Wilson-Hartgrove on costly hospitality: "Opening ourselves to others takes time. But love is a prisoner who stays up all night with a sharpened toothbrush, working away at a crack in the wall." (subscription required)
- Steve Thorngate talks to a pastor about using the Year D lectionary supplement in worship
- April Yamasaki about the times when it actual is about the nail
- Lawrence Wood's lectionary column for All Saints' Day (subscription required)

In the news:

- Supreme Court affirms monks' right to sell caskets
- Oprah interview stirs debate: What is an atheist?
- In Kenya, archbishop calls for focus on missions and evangelism