

Friday digest

November 1, 2013

Subscribe by RSS feed: magazine, blogs, news. See all feeds.

New today from the Century:

- Eliza Griswold on writing journalism and poetry: "Reading or writing a poem requires that we step out of ourselves—which can be dangerous. It's the same thing I do as a foreign correspondent."
- Two poems by Griswold: "Foot Washing" and "Waiting For the Volcano"
- Steve Thorngate on food stamps: "Today's benefits cut is simply the end of a temporary increase. That's a small comfort for struggling Americans whose tight grocery budgets just got tighter."
- A brief review of Stanley Hauerwas