For the choirmaster

by Yehiel E. Poupko in the April 20, 2022 issue

If a lion roars, who does not tremble? (Amos 3:8) if a bomb falling in the poem explodes will it be heard amidst lines words and no metaphor worthy of its actuality come now let us together in chorality summon the names above the noise names never again mute Mariupol Donetsk Luhansk Kharkiv Zhytomyr Berdychiv Chornobyl come now carpet the earth with their names Kyiv all Ukraine unheard unnamed
