

Treescaping, South

by Sarah Gordon in the January 2024 issue

Published on January 8, 2024

1

Longleaf Pine

Slivers of life, bundles and rolls and bags.

Subtle, Subtilis:

finely woven
ground traps,
hiding places.

Did you know
the needles make baskets and soft paths
as well as paper cuts?

2

Magnolia

My mother had a pair of ten-foot clippers resembling giant tweezers, and with them she'd snip the blossoms way high up. They'd fall into our arms mostly, some hit the ground, but we took care not to bruise or lose a petal of those openhearted gifts, that consecrated beauty.

3

Chinaberry

What a pelt of soft hurt those berries could be—small golden projectiles to aim at the enemy
or squash beneath your feet. Do you prefer to climb for assault
or hover below
and cover your head?

4

Dogwood

The crown of thorns
and Christ's wounds:
The flowers little bloodstained +'s.
I touched the hurt to see if the scarlet would smear and make me part of that tree.
I don't think I thought to pray.