

Israeli population rising: U.S. will no longer have largest Jewish population

News in the October 18, 2005 issue

If demographic trends continue, Israel will boast the largest Jewish community in the world by 2006. The Jerusalem-based Jewish Policy Planning Institute released a report predicting that Israel's Jewish population, currently at 5.24 million, will overtake its counterpart in the United States, where 5.28 million Jews live, within a year. The birthrate among Israeli Jewish women stands at 2.7 children, far higher than the Jewish birthrate overseas.